Subject: 22-09-15-- Bellino apartment addition

Well, this is not a particularly attractive design. And if this is to be an "In-law apartment," then you would normally assume that there would be a connecting door to the residence. It is odd that they made no attempt to include that, making me wonder who will be living there. This would certainly look better if the garage became the apartment, and a new garage was added on.

Given the considerable cost and effort the owners went to to satisfy wetlands drainage requirements after their over-enthusiastic tree-cutting a few years ago, we would need reassurance that this new construction will not affect the wetlands.
